1. Introduction

1. The Philippines is facing a stray animal crisis, with plenty of shelters facing closures or financial struggles. There is a need to address this issue because the state of a nation's stray population is a reflection of values and morals.

2. Why it is relevant?

It's been a long standing problem the nation faces, with plenty of people having to suffer consequences of being faced with strays that bite or scratch them. Needing immediate medical attention from Animal Bite Centers, all around the country.

3. Who is affected?

Everyone is affected since animals are everywhere and cannot be avoided. Every subdivision has a stray, and cats loiter endlessly around schools. There is no limit to who isn't affected because those who do not have pets can also encounter strays outside.

2. Problem Description

1. Detailed explanation of the problem

People either choose to avoid spaying and neutering because it is costly, or because they don't know that the government offers it for free. This is a problem because this would help control the stray population.

2. Observations or data

It is estimated that 13 million strays struggle to survive, with hundreds facing euthanasia. Additionally, everyday, animal bite centers are faced with patients everyday, due to their high demand.

3. Limitations or challenges

Not everyone is convinced that animals have to be spayed or neutered. Some feel guilty and other intentionally use their pets to breed animals for specific traits and sell them, also known as puppy mills/kitten mills. Which is considered to be unethical in some ways due to how some mills are maintained so poorly.

3. Proposed Solution

1. Describe an IT-related or tech-enabled solution.

A website to help schedule spaying or neutering to help promote the practice. Furparents can login and sign up their pets for a clinical visit to their assigned government veterinary clinic.

2. Include a features list, target users, and expected impact

- Login and Sign up

- News feature
- Online booking for neutering in local govt vet
- Nationwide

4. Conclusion

Once an online booking website has been created, it is in hopes of improving the living conditions of every stakeholder involved. Spaying or neutering doesn't have to be scary or hard, thus, providing an easier access to information on it could help the nation in the long run.
